CARL G. MILLER, Editorial and Business

Blazing the Trail

From out of the East, into the West
Came Lewis and Clark of 1804
And the trail they blazed opened the way
To a vast new land.

From out of our school, with its good name,
In years now gone and in those to come
All praise to those who cut new paths
'Cross a wide new world.

Carol Wunderlich.

Be it in the realm of scholarship
Or on the field of sport,
Lewis and Clark sails out to win
And honors bring to port.

Mr. W. W. Taylor, former mathematics instructor, is completing his fifth year as vice-principal.

Miss Rachel Davis, former English instructor, is completing her fourth year as girls' adviser.

Principal A. L. Parker

In the past, from out of this school, too, went Trail Blazers—men of faith, vision, and courage, bringing glory to themselves, to this school, and to mankind.

Today, uncharted trails beckon us in all directions—trails into realms of world peace and international understanding, into problems of race prejudices, into fields of world cooperation and trade.

Trail Blazers, then and now, must be made of stern stuff—equipped with faith and vision and tolerance.

My hope is that this school and community have equipped you so that you too may be a Trail Blazer.

Pre-Christmas Activities: Top left: Four fine soloists from the A Cappella Choir which presented the "Messiah" are: Ray Rosenau, tenor; Pat Bartlett, soprano; Dave Caburn, tenor; and Juanito Armand, soprano. Top right: Gathered around the Christmas tree in Miss Smith's room are: Jean Ryker, Joanna Peterson, Agnes Schubach, Peggy Shofer, Cecelia Peterson, Peggy Schussler, Louise Schroyer, and Zoe Robinson. Middle left: Shown gathered around the tree inside the main entrance after they have decorated it are these members of the A.S.B. Not standing: Mildred Reiser, Barbara Zerbach, Marlene Berlat, Lilace Lang, Jay Farrier, Janet Crowe, Bonnie Parker, and Pat Wakefield. Standing: Pat Harlowe, Ed Wolfe, Shirley Reugh, Dan Neraas, Lorraine Schmidt, and Betty Jo Wakefield. Middle right: Shown admiring the Christmas cards sent by the school's many friends are Mr. Woolard and Betty Jane Childers. Lower left: Admiring the litmus paper and test tube decorated tree in "Skip's" room are: Verna Engstrom, Gae Elkins, Virginia Elliott, Margaret Fulton, and Agnes Gabbert. Lower right: Observing one of the school's oldest traditions of singing carols in the halls before Christmas vacation are Mary Jane Stone, Betty Cryderman, Frank Leigh, Wes Kienholz, Bill Marks, Wes Graves, Barbara Daering, Mary Alice, and Maxine Simpson.

Top: Sponsored by the Spakane Community Children's Theatre, this group of students presented the play, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," to many audiences in and around Spakane. Pictured are Dwarfs Brentan Spencer, Eugene Vick, Douglas Squires, Burleigh Wartes, Jim Mantzheimer, Paul Davis, and Ray LeMar. Second row: Herb Cardle (prince); Radger Daniel (Berthold the Woodsman); Grant Silvernale (prince); Madlyn Meuli (Snow White); Bill McKee (Prince Florimond); Marilyn Grant (Witch Hex); Nancy Triplett (Peddler Woman); Albert Mann (Sir Dandiprot Bombos); Jean Albert, Shirley Lasater, Rose Baker, Cora Nelles, Marguerite Sater (ladies of the court); Roy Grew (prince). Third row: Joanne Rasenfield (lady of the court); Dallas Peck (prince); Joan Beckwith, Dorothy Frazier (ladies of the court); Benner Cummings (prince). Fourth row: Frank Leigh and Constantine Alex (princes).

City Officials Dine

The City Officials' annual social event was held last evening at the Desert Hotel.

Highlighting the entertainment at the banquet was Ray Rosenau who, accompanied by Dave Hess, sang "Money is the Root of All Evil."

A business meeting consisting of a review of the years' activities preceded the floor show. An increase in the city departments was reported by Mayor Rodger Daniel, former street cleaner. Two new street cleaners, Tom Anderson and Dave Gelb, and two dog catchers, Nancy Triplett and Bill Barbour, have recently been added to the force. Lawrence Miles and Homer Jenks were employed to deliver city notices to residents. Other reports were given by Mary Ann Grohs, head of the policewomen's division.

Expenses also figured in the reports. The W.P.A. reported a deficit due to unusually large amounts paid to Albert Mann. Other expenses included a new punch for Bob Palmer, street car conductor; broom for Freda Matheson, city hall scrub woman; and paint brush for Jeanne Barker, billboard painter.

Nightclub Stages Opening

LaRose's elite nightclub at W. 521 Fourth avenue, staged its grand opening on Thursday, July 4 with Kay Cunningham and Georgia Thomas as featured dancers. Blowing bubbles for them was Dick Hanks. The finale, "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," was performed by the massed company which included bartenders, Bill Dunlop, Francis Legault; stage manager, Bill Howe; and owner, Howard LaRose. The elaborate floor show was interrupted momentarily by Ainslie Palmer, stump speaker for Communism. Bouncer Al Cummins handled the "situation."

Girls Realize Ambitions

Realizing the ambition of a life-time, three former L. C. classmates will open a Chinese restaurant, Kwong-Hai-Lo. The owners, who will work as waitresses in their establishment, are Janet Oakley, formerly with the American Legion club in Lewiston; Joyce Hays, former ski instructor; and Patsy Noel, former basketball star at Stanford.

Helicopter Is Christened

The H.M.S. Wendell Reugh, helicopter created by the world renown Prof. Keith Tatsch was christened by Allan Peters, manager of the Davenport hotel on Thursday, July 4 on the roof of the hotel. The craft took off for its maiden flight at 2 p.m. with Frank Remsing, president of the Spokane and Western bank, Frank "Walt Disney" O'Malley, and William Pfeffer, retired editor of Janoscope among the celebrities present.

Medical Clinic Reopens

Hollywood Medical Clinic will reopen Monday after a serious fire. the owners, Miss Adeline Danke, psychiatrist; and Don Allgaier, baby doctor, reported. It is rumored that a mental patient at the clinic, Miss Janet Fulton, set the fire while thinking up publicity stunts for "Maizie" Robertson, burlesque queen.

Undertakers Are Fined

Fined for ambulance chasing were Phyllis Snook and John Tormino, partners in the newly-formed Snook and Tormino Undertaking establishment. Tormino formerly polished nickels for Bob Johnson, soap box orator. Grant Silvernale, famous minister, recently became a member of the firm.

Fair Features Inventions

Scientific inventions for making home life convenient for the theme of the World's Fair of 1957 which opened yesterday in Spokane. Featured were the baby buggies designed by Monte Colgren. With each buggy sold at the fair, the purchaser receives a free appointment with Bob Barringer, expert baby sitter. Other conveniences include an eraser with a pencil on the other end, a product of the genius, Jay Long.

Technicians displaying their skill were Frank Leigh, coil winder, and Takey Hayashi and Harold Parhinsky, mechanics. Ray Tweedy sold life insurance to the buyers of the new inventions.

A second section of the fair showed Washington novelties. Carolyn Owens, rug weaver at Medical Lake, displayed her wares and lace doilies made by Dwane Boyd. Fish salesman Al Turnbull and flower peddler Vern Mark also contributed.

Puckett Wins Contest

Elbridge Puckett, professor of ethics at Harvard, was announced winner of the twelfth annual "Precocious Children's" best teacher contest. Runners-up were Miss Betty Rose Hupplin, biology teacher and Miss Mary Lou Winton, grade school teacher.

Vocalists to Perform

Miss Eleanor Eber will be starred in "Carmen" and Miss Jean Beard in "Mignon" when the Spokane Opera company presents these operas next week.

Mike Jones recently chose Miss Phyllis Soss as vocalist for his band.

All-Star Circus Arrives

The Pat Murphy Circus has come to town! Featured are Skeleton Muriel Olson with her skull collector Arlene O'Bleness, Fat Ladies Barbara Brooke and Eileen Schlicht, Sword Swallower Shirley Day, Trapeze Artist Dolores Callarman, and "Big Ears" Summer.

The animal show is attended by Joyce Kielhack, monkey keeper; David Norvell, rat exterminator; LeRoy Mackey, former robin catcher for Byrd; Pat Armstrong, former pigeon counter in the Atlantic; and Pat Folsom, nurse to a sick kangaroo with Joyce Rowan as receptionist. Bill Rae has been taken on to the staff as chambermaid under Dick Walker, head of the animal nursery. Ethel Wittner, Frances Elkins, and Lucille Wagner, deep sea divers, have contributed numerous specimens to the exhibits.

Inventions Are Hailed

The invention of kissproof lipstick by Gary Long and Dallas Peck, and the invention of a better mouse trap by Margery Hunt were hailed with praise by the sales world. Don Castle, Chet Echelbarger, and Gordon Lofgren, lingerie salesmen; John Fisherwood, Alabama Salesman; Dick Burdine and Virginia Hallet, shoe salesmen, say "They are wonderful inventions."

Show Awards Prizes

Eleven grand prizes, each consisting of five of the famous Blue Ice Cream bars, specially thinned by Paul Taylor, were given away last night on the weekly radio program, "Emoluments for Stupidity." M. C. Betty Brewster, Comedian Chip Heitman, Guest Artist Janet Crowe, and Script Writer Donna Gerstenberger, said the exceptional knowledge of all contestants well warranted the unusual distribution of prizes. Contestants were: Bonnie Walden, Joanne Keegan, Carol Tozier, June Adams, Anne Papontone, Maxine Fink, and Newana Howes, housewives; Jack Rose and Jack Wynn, husbands, the latter being a father of ten children; and Mino Nitta, junk man.

Award to Be Presented

"Speedy Service Morgue," owned by Patsy and Jackie Bruck, was nominated for the safety award for 1957. Other members of this firm are: Lois York, Frances Wells, Bill Castner and Kathryn Owen, morticians; Clarence Madsen, (g)host; Beverly Larson, hearse driver; Mel Jensen, Margie Cross, and Mary Lou Gunby, grave diggers; Roy Shiraga, grave yard night watchman; and Herb Butler, preacher.

New Program Given

Lee, Ledingham, Warshaw B. V.D. Knight Klub opened a new show Saturday. The new chorus line included Barbara Schimke, Rita Garrison, Laurel Lutz, Donna Hyssop, and Michelle Golick. Attractive bartenders were Pat Reid, LeRoy Decker, Leonard Greely, and Kay Adams. Musical entertainment was provided by Fred Kaneshige, crooner; Jim Lamson, trumpeter; Rosemary Armfield, who was recently star of "Open the Door Dickie" at the Met; and Juanita Armand also of Met fame.

Elagrace Reekie shined piano pedals, JoAn Mangan sold cigarettes, and Don Knowles and Bob Taylor swept chimneys for the Klub. Pretzel Bender Earl Heathershaw, Dishwasher Nancy Larson, Scrub Woman Los Boberg, Clam Cleaner Maxine Miller, Farmer Lloyd Jacobsen, and Fish Decapitator Camilla Jones completed the list of persons contributing to the program's success.

Star Players Named

Herb Cardle, captain of the street cleaners' golf team, announced the names of his star players. They are: Bryan Soejima, Ernest Sly—and with the shortage of street cleaners, the following complete the list of players: Dave Coburn, singing garbage collector; Pauline Blackwell, manager of garbage collection; DeVerne Taylor, sewer inspector; Clifford Junes, W.P.A.; Les Taylor, street car conductor; Eileen Roberts, eraser of Kilroy signs; Lorraine Schmidt, fire engine chaser; and Juanita Wakeley, Emma LaLone, and Pauly Johnson, water commissioners.

Employers Go On Strike

"Employers Inc." voted to go on strike at a convention held Monday. Participating were: Ed Luders, head of Oofinheimer, Oofinheimer, and Garfinkle; Adolph Fricke and Zita Myers, partners in the Red Dot Cigar Co.; Don Jacobson, president of Jacobson's "We Make Everything Manufacturing Company"; Carl Pearson, manager of a furniture store chain; Kimi Yoshida and Harry Nagaoka, managers of the Y & N steel plant; Akiko Suzuki, head of General Motors corporation, and Hank Kitterman, owner of the exclusive Kitterman Kosie Cottages resort on Loon lake. Striking in sympathy are Secretaries Loretta Fiechtner, Julia Grandinetti, Eleanor Bauer, and Velma Kusler. Shirley Bowen, secretary to John D. Rockefeller III; Heidi Uno, secretary to the president of the United States; and George Detz, dog washer in Joan Durham's Pet shop, decided not to strike.

Teachers Hear Scientist

L. C. teachers meeting Tuesday was addressed by Laurie Baker, distributor of atomic power. Howard Adams, truant officer, also spoke. Special guests were: Don Matson, president, and Jean Pool, professor of psychology, at Vassar; and Joan Beckwith, queen of England, who recently taught English to Stalin.

Leona Heminger, Camille Sims, Beverly Kent, Nancy Barron, Dick Skagen, Mary Ann Bogdon, Bill Ponath, Carol Harris, Lois Getchell, Cora Nelles, Albert Groves, Audrey Holm, and Sylvia Holten—regular teachers—attended. New departments added to the school include barber classes taught by Roy Larson, with Barbara Kulp as chief hair rinser; glass blowing taught by Pat Wright; and jitterbugging taught by Carol Raney, whose first pupil was Miss Pinnegan.

Trapper Goes to Arctic

Bob Wallace was sent to the Arctic last week to trap fur bearing animals for the Buggs Bunny fur farms. The owners of the fox and mink farms are Bill Bertenshaw, Frank Harkins, Louise Nelson, and Ted Sakuma.

Crime Bureau Succeeds

That an experiment in detective agencies, the Reilly-Shults Crime Bureau, is becoming a success, was announced by city officials today. The bureau has its own jail and complete staff including: lawyer, Ken Westland; juvenile delinquent investigator, Madlyn Meuli; confidence men, Marilyn Richter and Bud Bennett; traffic cop, Ed Oksendahl; jailkeeper, Jim Rafferty, and hangman's assistant, Ruth Long.

The bureau's recent accomplishments have done much to "clean up" the city. Today, Bennett apprehended four bums: Dorothy Sunden, Bernard Demers, Arlene Yake, and Barkley Sonders. Jim Danielson, Rodney Elliott, Harold Parry, and Nancy Waller were taken into custody and charged with gambling and safe-cracking, along with Harry Roach and Bill Minnaugh, bootleggers. Delbert Rush, salt miner from Siberia; Phyllis Meader, bobby pin kinker; and Esther Meehan, apple polisher, were fined for neglect to take out licenses and join the unions governing their respective trades.

Mayo Clinic to Open

New Mayo Clinic will soon open at Medical Lake, Head Surgeon Hugh Meyers announced. Kathleen Clawson, otorhinolarygologist; Skip Gilbert, mad physician; Shirley James, wielder of the hypo needle; Evelyn Hedlund, taxidermist; and Dave Cunningham, horse doctor; are on the staff. Applicants for the psychopathic ward have been received from Carol Nyborg, pencil seller at Medical Lake; and John Happy, former bookie for Playfair.

Silent Movie Popular

"Modesty Pays," silent movie starring Ray Grew, now playing at the Fox theater, has been well attended, reported Jeanne Cockrell, head usherette. Also appearing in the film are: Janice Hendricks and Don Goettel, toe dancing team; Verna Dean Myers, professional roller skater; Der-yck Christy, tap dancer; and Ben Ruehl, replacing Gabriel. Doris Cam's unique photos of the inside of L. C. lockers dominated the news reel.

SPORT SPLASHES

Marjorie Bettridge was crowned 1957 international skiing champion at the recent competition on Mt. Spokane.

Betty Ann Anderson and Gwen Wing tied for the International skating championship in the finals held at Newman lake.

Phyllis Reynolds, heavyweight champion, will meet contenders Roger Billeter and Jim Brophy in the ring tonight.

Dorothy Frazier, star of Keilty's Gonzaga football team, has been chosen to play on the All-American football team.

Another champ is Joan Park, who was unanimously elected champion flag pole sitter by the members of that famous society.

The Bulldozer

I once could tell where every flower grew,
But it is different now.
Where once was undisturbed and wooded solitude
Some diabolic monster has passed,
Leaving behind huge footprints, bare earth,
and tortured trees.

The trail once orchard by leafy arms
Has been severed by the greedy beast.
The scent of the slain forest permeates the air
And the smoke of the fire which consumes it,
Yet here, one fragile flower survives the monster's tread.

ONE OF AMERICA'S LEADING JEWELRY STORES

Indian Refuge

By Carol Wunderlich

Time changes all things—customs, peoples, lands. Yet there are some that remain estranged from the passage of time. These are the ones that do what history cannot. They open a door to the living past. A chronological portrayal of events can depict social, economic and theological lessons, but never can it imitate the common everyday joys of long ago. What are these keys to other years? Perhaps it is a portrait of a girl painted a century ago. Or, is it an Indian arrowhead, an ancient diary, a Spanish gold coin? All these are objects that carry the fancy that is yesterday into the reality that is today. They make me wonder if life would mean the same to me had I lived in a rough cabin on a frontier instead of a white house facing a locust-lined street.

Yet strongly enough, it is none of these things that turned the lock for me. It was not an object to hold in my hand, but a place, to hold in my heart. From the monotonous grey-brown of sage brush desert stretching away from the Columbo, this place stands aloof. With its high mountains, virgin timber, and placid lakes, it is more than a mere oasis. It is a land of long ago holding out a key to other years. It is an Indian Reservation. I have always felt that very word, "Indian," is a magical, inseparable link with a time when the shining mountains were formidable. And I have always wondered why the white man's success in his struggle for freedom had to terminate the red man's carefree life.

So, the moment I stood on the shores of one of the Reservation's lakes, I beheld a legend written in the shadowy script of time across the glossy water and up the velvet mountainside. A silent testament of those years before our cities rose, it spoke of moccasins-padded silences and dusky, roaming men. Into my fancy, it brought a song of summer with the bright sun's rays etching golden patterns on the earth below. It might have always been this way, and even today, a lone dork, swimmer might have streaked his way across the water. A swimmer, swift and silent, and like a beaver, leaving only a wake of quiet ripples to mark his course. And what of fishermen in this paradise? Are they the ones who rely only upon sharp eyes and a steady spear?

Then too, my legend was a tale of winter. I saw soft, white hills guarding a black, black jewel. Here, during snowtime, hunters must come to find, by the water's edge, deer silhouetted against the pale moon.

But my reverie was ended abruptly. There, in a corner boy, my eye caught a dock and diving board. A dirt road skirted the modern convenience, and hurried off into the hills. No, this is no longer a home of silent swimmers. And fishermen have long since traded spears for rods, flies, and other surer tackle. Trees that once saw hunters gliding beneath their limbs now shelter frozen campers from the night.

Yet, somehow, I am glad that this modern man who has come is dusky, like the silent one. For I still retain my fancy that in some long ago time, the One Great Spirit created this land of high mountains and virgin timber for his bronze-colored children. In the course of time, the American Indian was pushed from many parts of his native land by light-complexioned men. But in their rush for power, the newcomers paused long enough to leave him this, an edoh-how. I like to think the Great Spirit nods His approval of this deed, and that in token of His pleasure He keeps His anger's flaming teeth from this land. How else could the velvet on its hills be virgin fir, when none groces the lesser mountainsides that are its neighbors?

TRAIL BLAZING

By Raymond Grew

Reverend Blockstone was working up to the climax of his sermon, "Blazing Trails Through Life." In spite of the competition which the buzzing flies were giving, the Reverend ended dramatically (and at last) with, "no matter what the cost, we must blaze our trail of righteousness through life."

The congregation stood heartily to sing, and then amid the rustle of starched Sunday finery, the members of Fairfield's Methodist church walked outside. Most of the townspeople paused to discuss bits of local gossip. The few who remembered the recent sermon hoped only that their neighbor would take its lesson to heart. Even the Reverend Blockstone had forgotten his spiritual message as he counted the money in the collection plate. Yet one member of the congregation left the church inspired.

Johnny Everest, who was rather proud of the fact that at the age of twelve he attended church instead of Sunday school—Johnny Everest took the sermon to heart. He walked toward home and his Sunday dinner with slow, confident strides. He wanted to be like Jesus Christ, or Abraham Lincoln, or the missionaries. He wanted to be great. He was sure that he would blaze trails through life. They didn't have to be trails of righteousness. The principle was the same.

Still filled with the religious atmosphere he had just inhaled so deeply, Johnny decided that now was the time to start being great. When he arrived home he didn't waste any time in announcing his decision.

"Hello Dad, I've decided to be great."

"That's fine son, a loudible ambition." His fother returned to his poper. Johnny wosn't sure whot he hod expected, but it seemed certain that such a momentaus decision deserved more recognition.

"I'm going to stond for everything that's right."

"Just be sure it's right first."

"I'm going to bloze trails."

It would hove hurt Johnny to know how hord it was for his fother to suppress a lough.

"Well, son, when you try to bloze trails you'll meet a lot of opposition. And mony people'll disogree with you os to whot is right, but you stick to it."

Johnny was glod that his fother hod finolly shawed same interest, but he was disappointed ot the lock of enthusiasm. He'd thought that everyone would be hoppy to heor of his gool, and instead oll he got was odvise and wornings—which a person of his determination hordly needed.

Johnny went to school the next doy still sure of his eventual greatness. He spoke a little more loftily to his ploymates, and although he didn't think it necessary to forego the pleasures of basketboll, he did conduct himself with unusual reserve. By naan he was disappointed. They hodn't noticed that he was great. Apporntly he would hove to moke his new outlook on life more abvious.

In his first closs that afternaon, Johnny's teocher gove oll the students on extro dose of orithmetic because there hod been too much talking. Unconsciously, Johnny jumped ot this new chance to show his willingness to stond for virtue.

"Miss Fronklin," Johnny begon, "I don't think it's fair to punish everyone for whot just some did."

"Then Johnny, it will be up to you to see that they don't talk."

"But that still isn't fair." Johnny summed up his argument conclusively, "and some of us kids hove other things we hove to do."

"You talked quite os much os the others, Johnny."

There was one thing for which Jahnny wouldn't stond. As long os he hod gone this far, he was going to stick to his principles. The price was on odmission.

"Aw right, Miss Fronklin, moke me do it. An' moke the kids that tolked do it—only it's not fair to moke the good ones do it."

"I don't think we need discuss the motter ony further."

Johnny's lost stond hod monoged only to olienote him from the rest of the world. The students hod little respect for such an obvious ottempt to win them over. Only one of them admired him for it.

Chorley Regin greeted him with, "That was pretty good, telling old lody Fronklin off."

When Johnny started to exploin about principles and gools, he lost his lost friend. He became more and more perplexed. When he'd spoken of ideols before his teochers, they hod always proised him. Now when he tried to live up to those ideols, when he supplemented them with action, they reprimonded him. His teochers lobeled him egotistical and stubborn. And he soon learned of their opinion. He was in too far to turn back, so he became more collous—or so it seemed on the surfoce. It was so wrong, how could they misunderstand? He was only doing the right thing. He was only being great. But something was wrong with his trail of righteousness.

As Johnny was stoying after school for the third night in succession, he was wondering whot he could use os an olibi when Miss Fronklin returned. It hod become useless to talk of doing right. Everyone regorded it os a lie, and only misunderstood him more when he mentioned it. Then, the door opened and Miss Fronklin burst in. Her entronce was morked by sollies of questions about his most recent insubordination. He hesitated and dadged, then only a slight troce of hope in his voice, he begon, "Well, Miss Fronklin, I told you, 'couse that wosn't right—he hodn't been cheating, honest he didn't . . ."

Johnny's voice troiled off os he sow that he wosn't very canvincing. Miss Fronklin was indignont.

"I suppose that you think that you know more about teoching than I do after twenty years. The only reason for you to defend that good-for-nothing boy is because you ore just like him. You probably cheated too, and wonted to defend him. I'm warning you Johnny Everest, there'd better be a change in you."

Johnny hod almost forgotten about ideols os he left schaal. He was warried primarily with how he could get back into his teocher's good groces. Just os he was passing the church, he met Reverend Blockstone. The Reverend wore one of his more serious expressions when he sow Johnny.

"Hello Johnny, my boy," the Reverend begon, "I hear you've been a bod boy in school lately. You must always obey your elders, Jahnny."

"But whot if they tell us wrong?" questioned the boy.

"We must always trust in the wisdom of our superiors until we're old enough to think for ourselves."

"When is that?"

"It will be a long time, Johnny."

"But I want to be great, and blaze trails."

Ballad of the Hillbilly

(Pete is a dog)

By George Dietz

The moan was shining full that night,
And everything was still
Except the dismal howls of Pete,
Which echoed 'cross the hill.

Now pow was sleeping in his bed
When 'wokened by the noise.

He lit the lantern by his side,
Arose, and called us bays.

"Now, Luke," he soys, "go out ond see
Just why our poor dog cries."

But Luke replied to father deor,
"I'm just too tired to rise."

"Soy, Clem," cries pow, now scratching
his eor,

"Just why do you rub your eyes?"

"Becouse I'm going back to sleep,
"I'm just too tired to rise."

Well, mow was getting sick ond tired
Of listening to the boys.

Sa she herself orose ond went
To find what coused the naise.

She entered the house in o minute, or twa,
And we inquired about the cries,

"Pete's sitting on o cactus, paw,
And he's just too tired ta rise!"

Haughty crag, caught by an artist's brush,

What hide you in your lordly shode?

Wha hath scoled your shaggy mone

To explare your snowy crown?

And why, I ask, did the pointer

Think his mortol fellows

Surpassed your lofty splendor

That he should put them before,

And you be dwarfed by distonce?

The Great Unknown

By Donna Gerstenberger

"Where does he go, this modman with the three small ships?" "He goes into the great unknown!" Three tiny caravels sailed from the harbor that October day, out into the unexplored vastness of the Atlantic. Christopher Columbus knew well what he would have to endure, and even more terrifying, he could only hope what might lie ahead. Thoughts of hardship and privation did not keep him from leaving behind the safe and familiar. Indeed, for nearly ten years he had worked and schemed so that he might sail. History is a record of man reaching out into the unknown.

Like Columbus the scientist is always probing, testing, checking, and rechecking. It may mean years of heartbreaking research, sleepless nights, and frenzied work when the answer seems almost within grasp. His search for greater knowledge, for new things, is his great unknown.

Man refuses to be content with what he knows. He seeks the new, and undiscovered, the unexplored. The more he knows the more he wants to know. The more he learns the more he finds to be learned. This is progress.

When there were no new lands to be conquered on the face of the earth, men began to explore the sky above and the water beneath the earth. Diving bells were constructed to search the ocean bed. Rockets are sent high into the stratosphere in hope of some new knowledge. Atomic bombs shatter huge warships in scientific tests. All this, that man may satisfy his insatiable appetite for knowledge.

Throughout the ages men have fought for a greater knowledge of the power that created man and the universe. The Romans worshipped at a shrine dedicated to "the unknown god." This shrine is said to have received more offerings than those of the gods of the household, crops, and other familiar things. They, in their crude way, sought to know more about the Great Unknown.

For some the unknown holds terror—for others promise. There is much we have learned and discovered during the history of mankind. But there is so much more to be learned that this is merely a beginning. The day when all things shall be known is inconceivable. What would dreamers dream of? What could searchers seek? The unknown is the lure that urges men forward. But for a desire to search out new things, man would still be content to live in caves and wear bearskins.
